Recruitment pack
Policy officer vacancy

About the role
This is an exciting opportunity for an ambitious and determined individual with a track record of influencing policy to achieve real change.

The policy officer role is a new post created to support the charity's work to reform policy and legislation to reduce the stigma and discrimination that people with criminal records face. With a focus on reforming the criminal records regime, the policy officer will build on Unlock's recent work – including successful legal intervention in the Supreme Court, the #FairChecks movement and work on the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 – to influence policy makers and key stakeholders to secure changes to legislation and government policy.

The role also includes supporting the development of Unlock's strategy of using the law for achieving change in policy, as well as building on the charity's previous research to develop a strategy that strengthens the evidence-base for changes in policies and practices that will have a positive impact on the lives of people we exist to help.

Unlock
We are an independent, highly respected social inclusion charity based in Maidstone, Kent. Established in 2000, we provide a voice and support for people with convictions who are facing stigma and obstacles because of their criminal record, often long after they have served their sentence.

Firstly, we help people. We provide information, advice and support to people with convictions, including running an information site and confidential peer-run helpline. We help practitioners support people with convictions by providing criminal record disclosure training. And we support employers and universities in treating people with criminal records fairly.

Secondly, we advocate for change, working at policy level to address systemic and structural issues. We listen to and consult with people with criminal records, undertake research and produce evidence-based reports to inform policy makers and the public. We challenge bad practice, influence attitudes and speak truth to power. We co-founded and support the Ban the Box campaign and we are pushing for reform of the criminal records regime.

We have seven staff (nine including this and another vacancy we currently have), with 2-3 volunteers each day that support the running of our highly-regarded confidential peer-run helpline.

Unlock is an equal opportunities organisation and committed to increasing diversity. Applications from candidates who are BME, have a disability or who are from a less privileged background are particularly encouraged. We warmly welcome applications from all suitably skilled people regardless of background and we are especially keen to appoint people who have themselves met with and overcome the disadvantages of having a criminal record. A past criminal record is not a requirement for this role but nor is it a bar.

Salary and terms
£28,366 per annum. Full time, 2 year fixed term contract with potential for extension. Home-based, with visits to the Maidstone office as and when required, with a minimum of 6 per year.
Job description

Job title: Policy officer
Reporting to: Co-director responsible for policy
Working with: Policy and practice lead, Advice manager

The role

The policy officer role supports Unlock’s work to address systemic barriers, stigma and discrimination that people with criminal records face. It will involve working across a number of different policy strands, but with a particular focus on our work to reform legislation and government policy on the criminal records disclosure regime. Building on Unlock’s recent work – including a successful legal intervention in the Supreme Court, the #FairChecks movement and work on the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 – the post holder will work to influence policy makers and key stakeholders to secure changes that benefit people we exist for.

The role includes developing our policy positions and voice, ensuring that we are listening to the challenges that people with criminal records are facing and ensuring there is a strong evidence-base for our recommendations for change.

The role involves assisting with the development of Unlock's strategy of using the law to achieve change in policy, as well as working with colleagues to build on the charity's previous research to develop a strategy that strengthens the evidence-base for changes in policies and practices that will have a positive impact on the lives of people we exist to help. The role will ensure that what we do is presented in an engaging and persuasive way to policy makers and relevant stakeholders.

Main responsibilities and tasks

- Draft policy papers and briefings, ensuring that they are informed by research and analysis, and are accessible to the relevant audiences.
- Produce briefings, blogs, reports and guidance for parliamentarians, policy makers and other stakeholders.
- Identify opportunities to input into consultations and lead on drafting responses.
- Monitor Parliament, government and statutory agencies for legislation, consultations and policy developments relevant to Unlock.
- Assist in the development and implementation of influencing strategies, including dissemination of policy outputs to key audiences.
- Develop and maintain a map of influential stakeholders and maintain those relationships alongside colleagues, including government officials in the Ministry of Justice, Home Office and other government departments, ministers and decision-makers in other relevant bodies including the Disclosure and Barring Service.
- Work with the co-director responsible for policy to develop and implement Unlock's strategy of using the law to achieve change in policy.
- Collate, analyse and present data and research that supports our policy priorities.
- Assist with the development of a research strategy that contributes to the evidence and debate on policies and practices that will have a positive impact on the lives of people we exist to help.
- Support the policy and practice lead on policy issues that overlap with access to employment and higher education.
• Ensure that the experiences of people with a criminal record effectively inform our approach to understanding and addressing issues at a policy level.
• Represent Unlock externally in policy groups, amongst policy-makers and government officials.
• Develop, maintain and update internal processes for demonstrating impact of our influencing work to support reporting to existing funders and provide an evidence base for future work (e.g. internal reports, monitoring statistics, case studies, emerging issues and trends).
• Engage in policy work as required on issues that are directly related to problems that people face because of their criminal record.
• Work with the digital and communications manager to develop content for the website and other external communications (including social media) that inform key stakeholders about our policy work and what our key messages are.
• Contribute towards media work relating to policy and influencing work (including drafting of press releases and comments/responses to external developments).
• Assist in any other reasonable duties as required.

Unlock is committed to fair recruitment and the inclusion of applicants with criminal records. This position is covered by the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974. For this role, the disclosure of a criminal record is not required. Applicants can make a voluntary disclosure if they wish, either to demonstrate their ability to do the role or to seek support for any ongoing restrictions (for example, exclusion zones, conditions around internet use or contact with the Public Protection Unit). This can take place at interview or offer stage. See our ‘Applicants with a criminal record’ policy for more information.

How to apply

To apply for the role:

1. Download the job application form from www.unlock.org.uk/2020recruitment.
2. Send your completed application along with a covering letter (telling us about what you do currently and why you think you are suitable for this role) and an equal opportunities form by email to admin@unlock.org.uk (with the subject line ‘Policy officer vacancy’). As our offices are currently closed due to Covid-19, we are unable to accept postal applications.

We shortlist candidates by matching details on your application against the person specification for the role so please make sure your personal statement in the application form carefully addresses this. We're looking for clear evidence of your experience, skills and knowledge and we're interested in all relevant experience, including beyond paid employment, which might contribute to your ability to do the job.

Closing date for applications is 10am, Wednesday 8th July 2020. Shortlisted and unsuccessful applicants will be notified by email by Tuesday 14th July. Due to our limited resources we are unable to provide feedback on unsuccessful applications.

Interviews are due to take place on Tuesday 21st July 2020. We expect this will be via video conferencing but we will review how we approach the interview process nearer the time and will aim to be as flexible as possible.

If you would like an informal discussion about the role before you apply, you can contact Christopher Stacey, co-director, at christopher.stacey@unlock.org.uk to arrange.

If you have any questions about the application form or application process, please email admin@unlock.org.uk.
